order form

Structure Reports Online is being launched in response to the explosion in the number of crystal structure determinations resulting from the use of CCDs in chemical crystallography. The journal will provide a fast, efficient and economic route for the publication and deposition of such new scientific results.

Structure Reports Online will feature

- e-reports in HTML and PDF formats
- access to the CIF, structure factors, and other supplementary data
- viewing of the 2D diagram
- generation and manipulation of a variety of 3D diagrams, and presentation of multimedia supplements supplied by authors
- key model precision indicators for each e-report
- links to structural databases (e.g., Cambridge Structural Database)
- links to bibliographic databases
